“Comedian. Mandolinist. Romanian heart-throb”

This former aerospace engineer is one of the top comics to come out of Washington D.C. Mark has been described in the press as "funny without being vulgar or nasty" and "going the smarter, hipper, direction to the joke."

A first-generation American, Mark's material ranges from his immigrant family to the aggravations of modern life; from current events to the fragility of the male ego. There's even a little music tossed in for good measure – with a closing finale of off-beat mandolin playing including the famous Godfather theme tune!
